- Democrats Keep Healthcare at the Fore (2026/06/18 19:13)
Senate Democrats hope to highlight health costs by forcing a vote on the Trump administration's changes to the Affordable Care Act before the midterm elections. Meanwhile, Alabama is the latest state to try to cut off access to medication abortion via telehealth. Anna Edney of Bloomberg News, Sheryl Gay Stolberg of The New York Times, and Lauren Weber of The Washington Post join KFF Health News' Julie Rovner to discuss these stories and more. Also, Rovner interviews Michael Cannon of the Cato Institute and Liz Fowler of the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health to discuss the employer health insurance tax exclusion.
- Arrests of Immigrant Parents Create Mental Health Crisis for Children (2026/06/18 09:00)
An estimated hundreds of thousands of children, many of them U.S. citizens, have been separated from a parent in the Trump administration's immigration crackdown. Their distress manifests in physical and mental health symptoms including developmental regression, stomachaches, sleep problems, and falling grades. Research points to long-term health consequences.
- Sandwiched Between Caring for Kids and Aging Parents? Reach Out for Resources (2026/06/18 09:00)
Squeezed between their young children and aging parents, the sandwich generation is juggling a lot. KFF Health News Midwest correspondent Cara Anthony discusses embracing her identity as a caregiver and which resources are available to Washington, D.C., residents caring for family members.
- Democrats Seek To Spotlight Rising Health Costs by Forcing Vote on Trump Regulation (2026/06/17 09:00)
Congressional Democrats are seeking to overturn a Trump administration rule they say will hamper Obamacare coverage. Whether they win or lose any floor vote, they'll likely use it in campaign messaging ahead of the midterms.
- Tennessee Pharmacies Sell Potent Ivermectin, Led by Anti-Vaccine Doctor Who's Taken 'Bucketloads' (2026/06/17 09:00)
Four years after the Volunteer State enacted the nation's first law allowing drugstores to sell ivermectin without patient-specific prescriptions, dozens of pharmacies dispense the drug in highly concentrated pills — many with the help of one anti-vaccine physician.
- Backed by Threat of Clawbacks, Feds Wield Tight Grip on \$50B Rural Health Fund (2026/06/16 09:00)
Mehmet Oz, head of the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services, framed the $50 billion Rural Health Transformation Program as "bold, creative plans" led by states. But as states have started to roll out their plans, federal officials control where and how the money is spent.
- They're Uninsured After Obamacare Became Too Costly. And They're Far From Alone. (2026/06/15 09:00)
After congressional Republicans let expanded subsidies for Affordable Care Act plans expire at the end of last year, some families have decided the price is too great of a financial burden and canceled their coverage.
- 1 in 4 Covered California Enrollees Could Get State Aid Under Newsom Proposal (2026/06/12 09:00)
California is considering expanding financial help for low-income residents struggling to pay high health insurance premiums after losing federal subsidies. But relief for state marketplace customers will be limited. Here's who may get help and what it could mean for premiums.
